Who It Is For

- ✓ Owners of 20-inch kamado grills
- ✓ People who want a gas-powered rotisserie
- ✓ Buyers who prefer stainless-steel outdoor hardware
- ✓ Customers who want included motor and forks

Who It Is Not For

- ✗ Those needing variable rotation speeds
- ✗ People wanting a full standalone grill
- ✗ Indoor cooking users

Trade Offs to Consider

- Requires assembly though motor and parts included
- Single-speed motor limits rotation control
- Designed for 20-inch kamados only
- Stainless steel resists corrosion but needs upkeep

How It Compares

- Versus built-in kamado accessories: includes motor and hardware
- Versus standalone rotisserie grills: not a full grill replacement
- Versus electric kits: gas operation requires external gas source

Choose This If...

- ✓ You own a 20-inch Kamado and want rotisserie
- ✓ You need included 120V motor and hardware
- ✓ You prefer 304 stainless steel outdoor parts
- ✓ You plan to use a gas-fueled rotisserie

Skip This If...

- ✗ You require variable rotation speed control
- ✗ You want a complete grill not an accessory
- ✗ You cook primarily indoors
- ✗ You need compatibility with other grill sizes
