Who It Is For

-  Smoking large cuts such as brisket
-  Caterers or restaurants needing bulk rolls
-  Home cooks who wrap and rest meat
-  Crafters using uncoated paper for sublimation

Who It Is Not For

-  People needing microwave-safe wrap
-  Those who prefer waxed or coated paper
-  Users wanting pre-cut small sheets

Trade Offs to Consider

-  Large roll reduces frequent reorders
-  Uncoated surface absorbs liquids
-  Not suited for microwave heating
-  No moisture barrier like waxed paper

Users Say

● POSITIVES

- ✓ Strong and durable for wrapping
- ✓ Does not transfer coating to food
- ✓ Good length for multiple cooks

● COMPLAINTS

- ⚠ Roll can be bulky to store
- ⚠ Paper absorbs liquids which can stain
- ⚠ Not microwave safe for reheating

How It Compares

- Vs waxed paper: no wax transfer
- Vs foil: allows steam release and smoke
- Vs pre-cut sheets: larger continuous roll

Choose This If...

- ✓ You smoke large cuts and wrap often
- ✓ You want uncoated paper for food contact
- ✓ You need bulk continuous sheets for events

Skip This If...

- × You need microwave-safe wrapping
- × You prefer waxed moisture barrier paper
- × You require pre-cut disposable sheets
