Who It Is For

-  Owners of Large Big Green Egg grills
-  Users who need a movable grill stand
-  People wanting a raised cooking height
-  Owners of large kamado brands who check fit

Who It Is Not For

-  Owners of small or medium kamado grills
-  People who want permanent fixed stands
-  Buyers unwilling to assemble a heavy frame

Trade Offs to Consider

-  Mobility adds moving parts needing upkeep
-  Powder-coating resists rust but can chip
-  No manufacturer weight rating provided
-  Single shelf offers limited on-board storage

Users Say

● POSITIVES

- ✓ Easier to move heavy kamado grills
- ✓ Casters roll smoothly on decks
- ✓ Sturdy powder-coated steel construction

● COMPLAINTS

- ⚠ Assembly can be heavy and awkward
- ⚠ Must engage wheel locks for stability
- ⚠ May not fit nonstandard grills without checking

How It Compares

- Versus fixed stands: adds mobility not permanence
- Versus heavy-duty carts: lighter frame unknown capacity
- Versus worktables: less countertop and storage space
- Versus brand-specific nests: more universal fit with checks

Choose This If...

- ✓ You own a Large Big Green Egg and need mobility
- ✓ You want a compact rolling stand with one shelf
- ✓ You prefer powder-coated alloy steel construction

Skip This If...

- ✗ You need a permanent fixed installation
- ✗ You require a rated certified weight capacity
- ✗ You want extensive built-in storage or work surfaces
