Who It Is For

- ✓ Home cooks who grill for family meals
- ✓ Outdoor hosts needing a roomy cooking surface
- ✓ People who want a built-in side burner
- ✓ Buyers who prefer stainless steel construction

Who It Is Not For

- ✗ Indoor or enclosed balcony use
- ✗ Those needing a compact tabletop grill
- ✗ Commercial kitchens or high-volume catering
- ✗ Buyers unwilling to assemble the unit

Trade Offs to Consider

- Large cooking area increases overall footprint
- Lid uses AISI 304 but body is 201 stainless
- Requires assembly before first use
- Weighs about 75.9 pounds not ultralight

Users Say

● POSITIVES

- ✓ Average rating 4.4 from 122 reviews

● COMPLAINTS

- ⚠ Assembly required can be time consuming
- ⚠ Large footprint may not fit small patios

How It Compares

- Larger surface than most two-burner portable grills
- Fewer burners than 4+ burner full-size grills
- Includes side burner unlike basic portable models
- Cast iron grates instead of porcelain-coated grates

Choose This If...

- ✓ You need a freestanding three-burner propane grill
- ✓ You want a 489 sq. in. cooking surface
- ✓ You prefer stainless steel with cast iron grates
- ✓ You need lockable wheels for patio mobility

Skip This If...

- ✗ You need a very lightweight or tabletop grill
- ✗ You plan to use the grill indoors
- ✗ You require commercial scale multi-burner capacity
- ✗ You prefer charcoal or electric fuel types
