Who It Is For

- ✓ Owners of 18-inch Classic Joe kamado grills
- ✓ Grillers who prioritize sear marks and crust
- ✓ Users who prefer durable cast-iron cooking surfaces
- ✓ Buyers who want an included lifter tool

Who It Is Not For

- ✗ Owners of non-18-inch grills
- ✗ People who avoid cast-iron maintenance
- ✗ Those needing full-round continuous grate coverage
- ✗ Indoor or gas grill users

Trade Offs to Consider

- Requires seasoning and regular care
- Heavier than thin steel or stainless grates
- Half-moon shape covers only part of grill
- Can rust if not cleaned and dried

Users Say

● POSITIVES

- ✓ Strong sear from high heat retention
- ✓ Durable cast-iron construction noted
- ✓ Includes lifter for safer installation

● COMPLAINTS

- ⚠ Heavy requires lifter for safe removal
- ⚠ Needs seasoning to prevent rust
- ⚠ Half-moon limits simultaneous cooking area

How It Compares

- Less coverage than full-round stainless grates
- More heat retention than porcelain-coated grates
- Includes lifter unlike some aftermarket grates

Choose This If...

- ✓ You own an 18-inch kamado and want better sear
- ✓ You accept cast-iron upkeep for stronger heat retention
- ✓ You want a fitted half-moon grate with tool included

Skip This If...

- × You need full cooking surface coverage
- × You prefer low-maintenance porcelain or stainless grates
- × You primarily use gas or indoor grills
