Who It Is For

- ✓ Owners of 20–22 inch kamado grills
- ✓ People needing mobile prep workspace near grill
- ✓ Grillers who want on-cart storage for tools
- ✓ Those who need a high load capacity cart

Who It Is Not For

- ✗ Owners of kamados larger than 22 inches
- ✗ Buyers who require stainless steel construction
- ✗ Users who need a compact tabletop solution
- ✗ People unwilling to assemble a metal cart

Trade Offs to Consider

- Carbon steel is strong but can corrode over time
- Large footprint provides workspace but needs space
- Casters add mobility but slightly lower static stability
- Folding panels save storage but have limited load

How It Compares

- Versus OEM stands: more workspace and storage but not factory accessory
- Versus stainless carts: lower corrosion resistance but typically lower cost
- Versus simple side tables: offers built storage and locking casters

Choose This If...

- ✓ You own a 20–22in kamado and need workspace
- ✓ You want a mobile cart with onboard storage
- ✓ You need a metal cart with high weight capacity

Skip This If...

- ✗ You require stainless steel for coastal exposure
- ✗ You cannot allocate roughly 59 inches width outdoors
- ✗ You need a stand made for oversized grills
